The LaRoe award requires this form plus the nominee's resume or Curriculum Vitae.

SCB welcomes nominations from its members and other conservation professionals for:

Edward T. LaRoe III Memorial Award: One award is given annually to an individual with a distinguished record of research and outstanding application of science to the conservation of biological resources. The intention of the award is to recognize the innovative application of science to resource management and policy. Preference is given to employees of government agencies.

Distinguished Service Awards to acknowledge distinguished service in any field associated with conservation biology for individuals or institutions from academia, government, and affiliations outside academia and government.

Early Career Conservationist Awards for achievement by professionals early in their careers (no more than 10 years since leaving school). SCB will not apply an age criteria in order to enable eligibility for individuals who might have come to conservation as a second career.

A total of five awards can be given for distinguished service and early career awards.

The Committee reserves the right to shift a candidate from one award category to another.
